

Join us for another 'Teachers for teachers workshop':

MAGIC QUILT and other amazing(ly) simple ideas

This workshop will focus on different ways how to transfer notions, get very young children intrigued to learn about the world they live in by participating physically in activities carefully prepared and designed to suit their age and level of languages L1 and L2 alike.

The fact that the image of the environment children age 4 to 7 have is somewhat blurred and that their vocabulary is significantly limited in their mother tongue as well as their ability to express themselves verbally in any language, poses numerous challenges to their English language teachers. Still, children's curiosity is the "engine" which can lead them in their exploration of the world.

Therefore, the aim of this workshop is to provide teachers, especially novices, with some useful advice on how to conduct a lesson and create their own, adaptable and reusable materials, tools and gadgets from everyday objects we have in our homes.

Physical movement, natural in young children, combined with a meaningful game will provide memorable and enjoyable way of learning.
